BIG IMPBOVEMENT FOR WATER FRONT

Warehouses Will Be Erected Making Redwood City Center Point For Wacle County.

That an important development is pending, affecting the water front of this city, was announced in business circles Monday following the filing in County Recorder H. O. Heiner's office of a deed in which T. Clark Rice transferred to W. C. Graves Jr., two acres of land at the foot of Main street and fronting on the creek. It is reported that the purchaser of the property will establish an industry which will have a wide-spread effect not only on Redwood City but the entire peninsula.

Graves, it is reliably stated, contemplates erecting warehouses on the banks of the creek and will establish a line of steamers and barges that will ply back and forth between the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers and Redwood City, bringing cargoes of produce which will be distributed to all peninsula points.

It is his plan to make Redwood City a distributing center for produce of all kinds, which will be delivered at the same cost as in San Francisco. Automobile trucks will deliver the produce from the warehouses to the purchasing merchants. In this way, a grocer at Palo Alto or Mountain View could order several tons of potatoes or other kinds of produce and would get delivery within a few hours.

Graves is a capitalist well known in Redwood City, and has established a beautiful home at Woodside. His grandfather was formerly associated in industrial enterprises at South San Francisco.

The purchase of the waterfront property desired for the warehouses was made through H. C. Tuchsen, the wellknown realty dealer of

HARBOR COMPANY PURCHASES TWENTY-TON LOCOMOTIVE

Last Sunday a twenty-ton locomotive and a flat car were received by the Redwood City Harbor Company for use in completing the construction work now under way and for permanent use thereafter in hauling the traffic between the Southern Pacific main line and the harbor front.

The locomotive will be operated by F. L. Rowell as engineer and Richard Hurley as fireman, both of whom will become residents of Redwood City. A roundhouse for the locomotive will be built near the water company's pumping station.

The heaviest part of the construction work has been completed as far as the middle of Steinberger creek. The entire project will be completed by July, when the harbor will be almost encircled by a railroad and wagon road.

AFTER COUGHING TWO YEARS

Waycross, Ga., Woman Found Relief in Vinol.

Did you ever cough for a week? Then just think how distressing it must be to have a cough hang on for two years.

Mrs. D. A. McGee, Waycross, Ga., says: "I had a very heavy cold which settled into a chronic cough which kept me awake nights for fully two years, and felt tired all the time The effect of taking your cod liver and iron remedy, Vinol, is that my cough is gone. I can now get a good night's rest and I feel much stronger in every way. I am 74 years old."

It is the combined action of the medicinal elements of the cods' livers aided by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of tonic iron which makes Vinol so efficient for chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis—at the same time building up the weakened, run-down system.

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you.

P. S.—If you have any skin trouble try Saxo Salve. We guarantee it.

THE FLY CATECHISM; A LESSON IN HEALTH

Where is the fly born? In manure and filth.

Where does the fly live? In every kind of filth.

Is anything too filthy for the fly to eat? No.

Where does he go when he leaves the surface closet, the manure pile and the spittoons? Into the kitchen and the dining room.

What does he do there? He walks on the bread, fruit and vegetables. He wipes his feet on the butter and bathes in the milk.

Does the fly visit the patient sick with typhoid fever, consumption and cholera infantum? He does and he may call on you next.

Is the fly dangerous? He is man's worst pest and more dangerous than wild beasts or rattlesnakes.

Did he ever kill anyone? He killed more American soldiers during the Spanish-American war than did the bullets of the Spaniards.

Where are the greatest number of cases of typhoid fever, consumption and summer complaints? Where there are the most flies.

Where are the most flies? Where there is the most filth.

Why should we kill the fly? Because, he may kill us.

When shall we kill the fly? Kill him before he gets wings—kill him when he is a maggot in the manurepile—kill him while he is in the egg state.

How? Keep the stables dry and clean and don't allow any manure to stand on the premises longer than one week. Have all other filth and trash accumulating on your premises removed or burned at least once a week. If your neighbor fails to comply with these rules and allows flies to breed screen your doors and windows and keep them out.

To rid kitchen of flies—Close the kitchen tightly, pour a table spoon of carbolic acid on a hot shovel and leave the flies to their fate. They should be swept up and burned.

MRS. W. J. DINGEE DIES IN ATLANTIC CITY.

News has been received of the death on Sunday last, in Atlantic City, of Mrs. William J. Dingee, wife of the retired capitalist and clubman, who a few years ago was a prominent figure in the business world and a resident of this city.

Mrs. Dingee, who has not been in good health for some time, passed away during the absence of her husband on this Coast.

Mrs. Dingee, who had been a factor in the early social life of Oakland, was before her marriage Miss Virginia Rose. She was twice married, her first husband being General Dodge, a Civil War veteran. In 1884, several years after his death, she married Dingee. Mrs. Dingee is survived by two brothers, Andrew W. Rose, a member of the Pacific Union Club of San Francisco, and Lieutenant Waldemar Rose, U. S. N.

FIRE THREATENS HOME OF HARVEY D. LOVELAND

Prompt action on the part of the local fire department probably saved the pretty home of Railroad Commissioner Harvey D. Loveland in Wellesley Park, from destruction by fire Saturday night.

The alarm was turned in about 5 o'clock and when the firemen reached the scene they found the fire smouldering in the upper part of the house and easily extinguished it.

WASHINGTON LETTER

(From Our Special Correspondent.)

Democratic members of Congress from California are very much disturbed at the apparent hostile attitude of the Administration toward that State. Scarcely a week passes that some move is not made, or legislation proposed, detrimental to California's interests.

The tariff bill was admittedly unfair to California, injuring industries that the people of that State had labored years to establish. Foreign importers of products in competition with California apparently had the sympathy of the Ways and Means Committee. It is not surprising that the New York lemon importers held a banquet in that city in honor of the Chairman of the Democratic Ways and Means Committee and the Chairman of the National Democratic Congressional Committee to celebrate the removal of practically all the duty on lemons.

Knowland Compiles Figures.

Congressman Joseph R. Knowland of Alameda has recently compiled figures from official sources showing that the effect of this Democratic tariff tinckering is beginning to be felt throughout California. During the months of October, November and December, 1913, the first three months under the operation of the law, lemons were imported to the value of $902,666, as against $270,107 for the corresponding period in 1912. This is an increase of 234 per cent. This will not be pleasant news to the lemon growers of Southern California.

Foreign Importers Profit.

It must be kept in mind that the foreign importers have not had their agents out long and it is probable that importations will steadily increase. The consumer, in whose interests this Democratic revision was supposed to be made, has not purchased his foreign or domestic lemons, or in fact anything else, at a reduced price. In other words, the money is being taken from the pockets of California lemon growers and handed to the foreign importers and the Italian producers.

The raisin growers of Fresno and other California counties will be interested to learn that there has been over 56 per cent increase in the importations of raisins. The increase in unshelled almonds has been large and importations for the three months valued at $561,393 as against $157,097 for the corresponding three months in 1912, an increase of 219 per cent.

Importation of Chinese Eggs.

Those interested in the poultry industry in California can well be disturbed when government records show that the importation of eggs for December, 1913, was 1,514,296 dozens as contrasted with 122,296 dozens for the month of December, 1912, an increase of 1238 per cent. Petaluma poultry raisers are up in arms over the importation of Chinese eggs under the new tariff, and an attempt was made to have the Department of Agriculture declare them unfit for food. The Department took up the matter and instead of relieving the situation gave the Chinese eggs a clean bill of health which assisted in advertising the oriental product. Several sugar beet factories are closed and it is feared others may be forced to do so later. Many other instances could be cited.

Hostile Attitude of Department of Justice.

Another serious blow to California has been the attitude of the administration in bringing suit for the unmerging of the Southern and Central Pacific railroads. The California Railroad Commission and practically every commercial body in that State, and newspapers irrespective of party, have protested most vigorously against the action of the Attorney General. A committee of representative Californians came to Washington to make a personal appeal. The Attorney General's answer to their plea was to bring suit the day following their visit. It is generally recognized that should the suit of the Attorney General be successful a great injury will be done California. The committee pointed out to the Attorney General that he was supposed to act in the interest of the shippers and the people generally, but that in this instance the benefit would redound solely to certain Wall Street interests and be a severe blow to California. The contention of those familiar with railroad conditions in California is that the joint lines of the Central and Southern Pacific railroads can be more conveniently and economically managed as one local system than by the substitution of two incomplete local systems and two agencies to perform the service now being carried on by one complete system in charge of one agency. This was the attitude of the State Railroad Commission.

Suffrage and Canal Tolls.

Then came the Democratic caucus action against suffrage and the attempt of the President to side-step the issue by declaring that he could not assist the cause of equal rights for women because the Democratic platform did not mention that subject. As a final blow to California the repeal of important sections of the Panama Canal Act are being urged to meet the objections of Great Britain. The Democratic platform adopted at Baltimore declared in favor of free tolls for American coastwise ships and against the railroad domination of that waterway. The President could set aside a platform plank but could not mention suffrage because of the same platform.

Treaty Obligations Fully Discussed.

Before Congress acted in 1912 our treaty obligations were fully discussed and a determination reached that our rights were unquestioned. The consensus of opinion of those senators present when the Hay-Pauncefote treaty was ratified was that as far as coastwise traffic was concerned (no British ship being permitted to engage in that trade) we had a perfect right to allow free tolls for coastwise ships following a policy adopted in regard to the waterways throughout the United States upon which the government of the United States has expended over $600,000,000.

Opinion of Senators Present When Treaty Was Ratified.

Senators who were present when the Hay-Pauncefote treaty was ratified have stated that their interpretation of the treaty when they voted for it was that we had the absolute right to favor American coastwise ships. This is the opinion of Senators Lodge, Perkins, Clapp and Bard.

A Railroad Fight.

Representative Doremus, chairman of the National Democratic Congressional Committee, declared in a public speech that the question was whether the canal was to be run "in the interest of the taxpayers and consumers of the United States or in the interests of the transcontinental railroads that have always opposed the canal and would now destroy its beneficial use to the American people."

"It is not surprising that the Democratic members of Congress from California are worried.

CITY OFFICIAL PAPER

D. E. O'KEEFE, Editor and Proprietor

It would be a graceful act on the part of Congressman Joseph Knowland, who is seeking the Senatorship on the Republican ticket, to withdraw in favor of Samuel M. Shortridge and become a candidate for Governor. It is the unbiased opinion of a great number of Republicans throughout the state that he could easily defeat Hiram Johnson. He is very popular in almost every section, and being a prominent Native Son he would have the backing of the younger element of the electorate as well as that of the old line Republicans for that position. While Mr. Knowland would be a formidable candidate for Governor he could lay no claim to the Senatorship, in view of the fact that Alameda county has had a tight grip on the toga for the past twenty years. It is about time that section should pass the honor to some other portion of California.

GRAMMAR PUPILS HAVE RARE TREAT

Chase Littlejohn Delivers an Instructive Lecture on Habits of the Northern Sea Otter

Chase Littlejohn, trustee of the local Grammar school, gave the following talk to the school children Tuesday morning. Mr. Littlejohn is a naturalist of more than local note and his speech was listened to with deepest interest. Mr. Littlejohn is probably the best authority on this subject, as he lived for a number of years in the far north and hunted the otter for a living. It is a fine thing for our boys and girls to hear such a talk as this, as the impressions made are of great educational value:

I cannot say how long ago it was that this animal was first descovered or seen by civilized man, but in the early days when venturesome navigators found their way to the shores of the northern Pacific, sea otter were found in great numbers on the Alaska coast and southward as far as Lower California.

At present, however, although found over considerable of the ground, what a change has taken place; from the thousands that were here then, only the merest fraction remains, and these very few are being killed whenever a chance offers, and their total extinction seems only a short time away. When Behring firs visited Alaska, from 1760-1765 he wrote that sea otter were so numerous that the Aleuts wore long mantles made of their skins, and the best ones could be purchased for a scrap of iron.

In 1804 Baranov sailed from Alaska with a single cargo of 15,000 skins, and at the time the Fur Seal Islands were discovered, two sailors killed 5000 the first year. The next year less than 1000 were taken, and from the end of the next six years until the present time, not a sea otter has been known there, and so it has been at many other islands in later years. In 1873, when the Americans secured Alaska nearly 4000 were secured, and in 1880-1881, owing to the presistency with which they were hunted, and the addition of the white hunters to the native population, between 6000 and 8000 were taken, some of which I secured myself and helped, I am afraid to say, in the general extermination. Not only was the vigor with which they were hunted responsible for the great decrease in numbers, but the modern rifles and shot guns played no small part in the general slaughter, and together with the nets used by the whites, reduced the income of the latter so much that they were obliged by about 1890 to engage in other occupations.

The nets used were of large mesh and about six fathoms long and ten or twelve feet deep. They were anchored at one end so as to allow them to swing with the tide or wind, which blew aat times with teriffic force. These winds however, were what the otter hunters were looking for, for it was at such times that the otters were obliged to seek shelter behind the reefs and rocks where the nets were always located. At night, when the animals are diving for food, they are unable to see the net and are soon enmeshed; in their struggles to free themselves from this new species of sea weed they attract others of their kind, if there are any about, and in the general excitement, often five or six are caught in one net. At such times it seems that it is everyone for themselves and a general fight takes place, biting each other and the wooden floats on the nets, with the result that within a few hours all, or most all will be drowned. When only one is netted, if the net has not been left too long, he is often found alive when the net is visited.

After I left school here in Redwood City, I was loafing around for about two years with nothing much to do. During this time my brother went on a sea-otter hunt to the northern coast of Japan, or in other words, the Kuril Islands, the hunt was successful, but he concluded that he could make more money if he had a ship of his own. This secured, the next thing was to get men for hunters. I was asked to go, and boy-like I jumped at the chance for I was crazy to travel and see the world. We sailed from San Francisco thirty-eight years ago, the 18th of the present month, March, and by the way of the Sandwich Islands, reaching our destination in May, and at once began our hunt for sea otters. A rifle was used in the chase, and to hit such a small mark as an otter's head, (about the only part to be seen) from a bounding boat and tossing otter, was no easy matter, and at first was entirely impossible, but practice makes perfect and ere long an otter stood but little chance when hemmed in between three boats, the number always employed for the purpose. The waters about the Kuril Islands are as a rule very rough, owing to the rushing tides and violent winds. This makes hunting difficult and dangerous, and occasionally boats with their crews are lost, and one hunter I knew well was caught in a tid-rip and the last seen of the boat and men by his companions in other boats nearby, who fortunately escaped, was when the boat seemed to stand on end and plunge beneath the surface.

Many men lost their lives following this occupation and out of the hundreds who followed it up for so long, I am perhaps the only one left who can tell you about all that is known about the life and habits of our nearly extinct sea otter. My own brother with his crew of about thirty men were the last otter hunters, as far as I know, to sail from San Francisco, leaving there on March 1, 1889, never to be heard from again, like many another unfortunate ship that sailed for the same purpose. The sea otters disappeared from the sea, but their enemies went with them, so you can understand what a dangerous occupation it was, but of all the sports the world has perhaps ever known, there was none as exciting as the chase of the animal whose fur is the most beautiful and expensive of all and with the price ranging from $100 to $155 in 1880, it has advanced to $1500 and 2000 dollars at the present time. The home life of the otter is very interesting and their great affection for their young, would in many instances put us humans to shame. I have many times seen the baby otter shot to pieces on its mother's breast, while she herself would have her paws and nose torn with bullets, (the only part exposed above the water) and still she would not desert the remnants of her offspring. Could mother love be greater? The sea otter differs from all other animals of which I know anything, for the fact that they always swim on their backs, with their heads turned upward, and are consequently swimming as we would have it, backward but always keeping an eye in the direction in which they are going. When they are about to dive they turn over and go under back up and remain so while under water, but immediately resume the opposite position on reaching the surface. While under water, if not too far from the boat, they can be seen easily from the fact that they assume a golden color, or look like a sailor in an oil skin jacket, while in fact they are a deep black or dark brown. As I have stated before, they were always hunted with three boats, which were formed in a triangle, one boat ahead, and one on eather quarter. When an otter was sighted, the hunter seeing it would have a paddle raised as a signal to the other boats, which were several hundred yards off, that an otter was in sight. Then all three boats would move off in the direction indicated by the boat from which the animal was seen. After approaching to within a reasonable distance, a shot was fired at the otter, and the bullet striking, as a rule nearby, would frighten him so that he would dive at once, without taking time to properly inflate his lungs and consequently could not remain long beneath the surface, and would therefore be able to make a rather short dive, while if he had taken time to draw a long breath he might have gone so far that he would have escaped the hunters' ever watchful eye, and escaped notice when the surface was reached. For after a second dive is made, they are rarely seen again that day. I have been often asked why three boats and no more were used; the reason is this, with three, it matters not where the game comes up, there is always a chance for at least one man to shoot without endangering the lives of men in the other boats. If more boats were used they would be constantly in eaach other's way, with the result that the otter would have time to get sufficient breath to enable him to make a long dive, and possibly make his escape. When an animal is killed he floats back up and the body takes the shape of an inverted letter U, both ends down, thus causing the air to remain in the lungs, serving as a float. If for any reason the air escapes, the body at once sinks and is, of course, lost.

The mother with her young acts more like a human being than anything else. She takes the baby in her arms and fondles and caresses it, holding it closely to her breast, showing great concern when danger approaches, at which she will at once make off, sometimes swimming, but oftener with short dives, for the mother knows well that if she remains too long beneath the water that the young baby will perish. Even with care and precaution, the little fellow is obliged, as soon as he comes to the surface, to utter a loud cry, which at once attracts the hunters' attention, who at once shoot. At such times the mother, knowing that to at once dive would be death to her offspring, remains often for several shots to be fired before diving. Often when the weather is foggy the only otter that can be chased with any degree of success is a mother with her baby.

With the school election but a short week away, it behooves the electors to think a while over the following facts before casting their ballots: Firts, that the school district has two special taxes of $2000 each imposed on it without the knowledge or consent of one in a hundred outside of the present board of trustees; second that this money has not even been expended wisely, as further taxes are contemplated unless a change is effected. Wm. H. Turubull candidate for the position of school trustee on April 3rd places himself on a distinct and satisfactory platform, to-wit: No expenditures of public money or special or other taxes without the consent of a majority of the people.

GEN. CEO. S. EVANS CORPS VISITS EVERGREEN HOME

A very enjoyable visit was made to the W. R. C. Home at Evergreen last Monday by members of the Gen. Geo. S. Evans Corps of this city. We were received by the matron and L. May Ely, president of the W. R. C. Home board, who having heard of our contemplated visit came out from San Jose to spend the day with us, and after removing our wraps, were ushered into the reception hall, where the old ladies, all very neatly attired, greeted us with smiling faces and expressions of welcome. The ladies are apparently happy, with but little sickness, and the hand of time and force of circumstances have not detracted their love of finery, as was evedenced by the exhibit of beautiful hand made laces, collars, handkerchiefs, etc. The hours were spent in visiting, chating, vocal and instramental music and speech making.

When dinner was announced, our hostesse led the way to the dinning room, when guests and immates all enjoyed the next half-hour, while the choicest of edibles, some of them home grown, were partaken of, and the shelves in store-rooms are still piled high with preserves and jellies prepared last year, by thoughtful ones.

As our visit was coming to a close we were invited to inscribe our names on the great register, always open on a table, with an emblem of our country on each side and a portrait of Elizabeth D'Arcy Kinne, first National President W. R. C. from California on the wall overhead. The ladies seemed to have taken a new lease of life as they all congregated on the veranda bidding adieu and waving handkerchiefs, and though they may hope to see us all again it is doubtful if we may see the same smiling faces again, as some of them have seen the frosts of eighty-eight and more winters; but when one day's outing will add so much pleasure to life's declining years we consider the day doubly well spent and the chorus of "Good bye" will linger with us.

Many Faulty Recall Signatures.

County Clerk Nash on Wednesday completed his work of verifying the James T. Casey recall petition. He found the petition to be 158 names short of the requisite number, to-wit, 527. The number of signatures verified to were 369. The petitioners will have ten days from March 25 to supplement their petition with the additional names as required by law. J. M. Custer and Doctor J. C. McGovern were at the clerk's office yesterday going over the names on the petition and agreed that the ones declared to be not sufficient by the clerk, was caused by the parties circulating the petition, who failed to see that the signers were on the register. County Clerk Nash explains that many of the names of those who signed the petition are on the register now, but were not on the register when the petition was signed. McGovern and Custer say the new petition will be circulated today, when the requisite signatures will be secured. It is expected the new document will be filed with the clerk by Tuesday. It is believed the petition will be acted upon by the board of Supervisors at the meeting to be held on April 13.

Menlo Burglars Sentenced.

John Francis Martin and Lloyd Melba, who robbed Duff & Doyle's store at Menlo Park last week, pleaded guilty to a charge of burglary in the Superior Court yesterday. Martin was sentenced to serve two years in San Quentin. After a statement from the district attorney, Melba was permitted by the Court to withdraw his plea of guilty and plead guilty to a charge of petty larceny, and was sentenced to serve 30 days in the county jail. Martin stated that he was a native of Ohio, 34 years of age and an engineer by occupation. He stated that he was only in Menlo Park one day when he committed the crime. He could give no reason for his act. The Court was inclined to be lenient with the prisoner, but Martin seemed anxious to go to prison. Melba stated that he was a native of Canada, aged 19 years, that Melba was not his true name, and that he met Martin in Sacramento ten days before the crime was committed.

Wanderer Adjudged Insane

The young woman found wandering in a dazed condition near Crystal Springs lake on Thursday and who was brought here by the authorities, was taken before the insanity commission, consisting of Dr. Ross and Dr. Chapin, yesterday morning and was adjudged insane. In the afternoon she was taken to Agnews. The doctors plied the young woman with all sorts of questions, but she would not speak. She appeared to be in a stupor, not realizing her position or taking notice of the events transpiring about her. The case puzzles the authorities. The woman is about 26 years old, with dark brown hair and eyes and rather dark complexion, with attractive features. She had a discolored optic, but how she received it no one can tell. She meekly accompanied the matron of the jail to the asylum yesterday afternoon.

ACTION ON STREET WORK PLAN IS AGAIN DEFERRED

Council Hears Many Protests and Halts Action One Week.

Contrary to general expectation, no definite action was taken by the city council at its adjourned meeting Tuesday evening regarding any of the pending plans for street work. With all of the trustees except Hvnding, who was out of the city, present, the entire subject was given a pretty thorough discussion, during which the merits and demerits of the several plans were gone into. All who desired to be heard were given an opportunity to express their views and a number of objections were made. As a result of the investigation final action was again deferred until next Monday evening and the trustees will make some personal investigations in order that they may be fully informed in regard to all phazes of the question.

A numerously signed protest was filed by owners of property in the northern portion of the city against the improvement of that district under the present plans, the chief ground of objection being that the district was too restricted. Apparently the protest voiced no actual objection to the prosecution of the work if it were made to include the entire section and to give time to investigate this assumption action was deferred.

Numerous objections, principally by representatives of the Moxey Realty Company, were made to the scope of the improvement district laid out for that portion of the city west of the County Road. In many instances the objections were more to the construction of sidewalks than to the paving of the roadways. These objections were fully discussed by the trustees present and, while it was admitted that in some instances there was reasonable force in the argument for delay, other objections did not meet with very favorable receptions. To give an opportunity for more full consideration, action on the resolution of intention for this district, which had already been twice revised by City Attorney Mansfield, was laid over until next Monday evening, when it is more than probable a definite conclusion will be reached.

While no action was taken, it was practically decided that the improvement of Whipple avenue should not, for the present, be extended west of Woodstock place.

PIONEER WOMAN CALLED TO HER ETERNAL HOME

The funeral services over the remains of the late Catherine Milliken were held at the parlors of the Redwood City Undertaking Company Wednesday morning. Father Sulivan prefaced the prayer service by a few appropriate remarks in which he took occasion to pay a high tribute to the character of the deceased and likened her to the giant oak of the forest that had sheltered many from heat of the summer sun and whose coolnig shades had brought happiness to untold hundreds. Like the oak, Mrs. Milliken had sheltered many wayfarers, consoled the sick and brought happiness to many homes by her cheerfulness and gave her aid to those in distress without ostentation. Father Sullivan paid a deserved tribute to the pioneer mothers who suffered so much, and whose struggles were marked by success in establishing a high standard of civilization on these shores. He referred to the many hardships the deceased had undergone and how she stood steadfast to the faith of her fathers and lead a pure, Christian life.

The remains were placed on the 12:29 train for Cypress Lawn Cemetery, where the interment took place. The deceased passed away at her home in this city after a lingering illness Sunday morning. Mrs. Milliken was a native of Ireland, aged 80 years. Previous to coming here she resided at Halfmoon Bay at which place she was married to Dr. Milliken. The deceased lived in this city about forty years.

Mrs. Milliken is survived by four children. Mrs. C. Campbell of Honolulu, Joseph Kehoe of Southern California. Dr Albert Milliken of Fort Jones, Siskiyou county, and George Milliken, a dentist of Sacramento.

Improving Water System.

The Redwood City Water Company has ordered 3000 feet of ten-inch cast iron pipe from the east, to be laid on Chestnut street from the pumping station on the edge of the marsh and along said street to its intersection with Stambaugh street to connect with the city's distributing system. The pipe will replace the present eight inch pipe now in use. Owing to the rapid growth of the municipality the company was compelled to make this improvement to keep pace with the big demand now bein made on the water system. The company will also purchase a new Venturi meter which will be installed in about a month. For some time the town council has been replacing the old pipe lines on many of the streets of the city. It is understood this work will continue until all the streets are laid with new pipe, thus giving water consumers the best service on the peninsula.

Miss Lottie Genochio, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Antone Genochio, was married in San Rafael on the 16th instant to Dr. Howard B. Dixon, an attache of St. Mary's hospital. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Foley. Miss Genochio had been a nurse at the hospital and was so great a favorite among the staff and patients that she was known to all as "Sunshine." She will be missed by them.

CHASE LITTLEJOHN TELLS OF SEA OTTER HABITS

This is owing to the fact just mentioned, the mother can be followed by the cries of the little one, she knowing all too well, that this lessens her chance of escape, and often when the baby makes too much fuss, ducks his head beneath the water repeatedly to deaden the outcry.

In the early days of my hunting on the Japan coast we found the otter there in their natural primitive state, because they had never perhaps been hunted at sea. There we found them often in "schools," as many as 400 were estimated in one large lot of this kind. Often, just a family would be together, a father, mother, young of the previous year and the baby. These when being persued would not often desert eachother, with the result that the whole family would often perish from the hunters' merciless bullets In Alaska, where the hunting has been carried on for years, this state of affairs is but rarely met with, and the mother will often desert her young before a shot has been fired. When the baby is thus deserted, if he be only a few days or weeks old, being without help and not knowing how to swim, will drown in a few minutes but if he be two months old, he is able to take quite good care of himself, and can dive from thirty to forty yards. There is but one young at a birth, the majority being born in the spring, but the natives assert that young are born every month in the year. But during my years of observation not a single cub was noticed during the long cold winter.

Another trait that is agreeably human, is the fact that a mother with young will often adopt and rear the young of some mother who has perhaps been killed, or in some way lost her little one.

The food of the otter consists mostly of sea urchins, which they dive to the bottom to secure. As soon as the surface dis reached the shell fish is placed on their breasts and there torn in halves, the contents being drunken from each half and the shell thrown away, often to a considerable distance. The otter will then wash and clean his face and "hands" before diving for more food. They also sea weed and fish, but probably not much of the latter, with the exception of the squid, which they are obliged to subsist on when driven far out to sea by constant hunting and where they are unable to reach the bottom, although this can be done in at least sixty fathoms.

That they eat codfish if they can be had, is in a measure proven by the following interesting incident: Our schooner was anchored about 20 miles from land in 60 fathoms of water. Codfish were abundant and one man was fishing while a number of others looked on. The weather was extremely foggy, when presently a sea otter drifting by, probably mistook the schooner for a rock and immediately swam towards it. Rifles were at once secured, but in the meantime the otter had dived, and as we thought, passed on. Presently the fisherman got a bite, and after hauling in the fish for a considerable distance, was suddenly surprised to find the strain on his line greatly increased, and made some remarks about it. We all looked over the side to see what kind of a fish he had hooked, when behold, the otter had clasped the codfish in his pawa and did not release his hold until a bullet ended his career.

The sea otter is possessed of much common sence and the strategy he uses at times is remarkable. Their greatest enemy, perhaps, other than man, is the killer whale, This animal, as is well known, destroys a large number of fur seal, which they can easily catch, once the game is located.

The seal is in great fear of this whale and will at once make off at great speed when one is sighted. This commotion, caused by the seal leaping out of water, attracts the whale, who gives persuit and soon overtakes his prey, and all is ended. The sea otter on the other hand, will also get away as fast as possible, but if he finds that he is persued, and knowing full well that flight is useless, will double up as if dead and remain motionless. The whale not caring for carrion, and thinking this to be such, passes on to try and locate the living otter that has seemingly escaped.

The natives formally hunted the otter with skin canoes, using spears instead of guns. These they could throw with great accuracy and for considerable distance. After the animal had received several spears in his body he was unable to dive much and was soon dispatched with a long club carried for that purpose. Each native has a private mark on his spear point, and when the otter is killed the native having his spear nearest to the otter's head takes the skin. Later, small muzzle loading rifles were used, with some success, but many otter escaped after being struck, the bullets just penetrating the skin. I myself took several such bullets from the otter which I had secured and undoubtedly they had carried about beneath their jackets for many years, because such rifles had gone out of use before I lived in Alaska. Many bears were killed also that would contain three or four such bullets.

Only a few otters are now taken in Alaska, and I know not if any are taken about the Kuril Islands. Stringent laws have been passed to protect any that may be left along the California coast, so let us hope that this, the rarest, most beautiful, of all fur bearing animals may be so protected at all places that future generations may reap some benefit from its being here.

NEW PHONE RATES GO INTO EFFECT

Revised long distance rates over the lines of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company throughout the State of California became effective last Saturday, and will prove of great financial benefit to the phone users of San Mateo county.

In its new rates the company takes the "air-line" principle as a foundation for establishing the tolls; that is, charges are now based on direct distance without regard to construction mileage or other conditions. The new rates between San Francisco and the following points in San Mateo county will be as follows:

South San Francisco—"Two number" service, 10 cents for 3 minutes, 5 cents each additional minute.

Burlingame and San Mateo—"Two number" service, 15 cents for 3 minutes, 5 cents for each additional minute.

Redwood City—"Two number" service, 15 cents for 3 minutes, 5 cents each additional minute. "Particular person" service, 20 cents for 2 minutes, 10 cents each additional minute.

Rates between other points are fixed in the same proportion.
